Good Crop Yields Keep Prices Below Production Costs

American Farm Bureau Head Tells Growers to Cut Acreage to Make Profit

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Porter Taylor of the American Farm Bureau Federation says last season's crop yield was too good to keep prices above production costs.

He told the New York State Vegetable Growers Association yesterday that considerably reduced acreage would favor profits.

"It is evident," Taylor observed, "that the public will buy at prices that will support high production costs."

Taylor, director of the bureau's fruit and vegetable department, said a 20 per cent reduction in pea acreage, for example, would be "conservative."

A Wayne county grower attending the association's convention said farmers were being offered prices much lower than costs.

In an interview, Marion Johnson said:

Retail Prices Are Reported Lower

More Food Prices Are Being Marked Down Than Up, Is Word

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—There appeared good food news today for the nation's housewives: retail prices generally are on the way down.

There'll be no more sharp boosts in food prices, virtually all food industry sources said. And a country-wide spot survey of representative cities showed that more retail food prices are being marked down than up.

The survey of retail prices disclosed prices had been reduced for eggs, cheese, lard, fresh and canned meats, canned citrus fruits and dried peaches and dried apples.

Food industry spokesmen predicted lower prices in canned goods upon receipt of the summer pack.

Gordon C. Corbrey, president of the Institute of Food Distribution, said in an interview in New York that "the basic downward trend in retail food prices has been gathering momentum since mid-November after reaching a peak in mid-October."

Corbrey predicted retail food prices would average about 10 per cent lower by April. He added retailers and wholesalers were "extra nervous" because considerable stocks are not selling too well.

New Salary Scale For City Employees Heard by Council

Raises Proposed Friday for Appointive and Elective Officers, Including Mayor

A resolution and petition of the Kingston City Employees, Local 316, to have the Common Council increase by substantial amounts the salaries of elective and appointive officers of the city was read at the recessed meeting of the council Friday evening, and referred to the laws and rules committee.

The petition set forth that the elective and appointive officers of the city "do not receive fair and just compensation compatible with the honor and dignity of said office."

It set up a new salary scale fixing the salary of the mayor at $7,500 annually. The salaries of the city treasurer, city assessor, corporation counsel, and city clerk would be fixed at $3,000; the city judge at $5,000; the special city judge at $1,000; alderman-at-large at $1,000 and the aldermen at $600.

The resolution and petition set forth that if the salary changes fixed by city charter cannot be made effective as of January 1, of this year, that a "cost of living bonus" compatible be taken under consideration for 1947.

The resolution and petition were referred to the laws and rules committee without comment.

Desmond to Ask For Crime Institute

Wants State to Find Way to Prevent 'Repeaters' Through Science

Albany, Jan. 11 (AP)—A state crime institute, where causes and prevention of criminal behavior would be studied by top-flight scientists, was proposed today by State Senator Thomas C. Desmond.

The Newburgh Republican said he would introduce a measure when the Legislature reconvenes Monday, suggesting that such an institute be affiliated with Columbia or some other university.

Desmond declared that "repeaters" made up the majority of prison populations and "a fresh approach to the crime problem" must be made through scientific study.

On the institute's staff, he said, would be experts in medicine, law, psychiatry, sociology, education and social work.

"It will attempt to coordinate the present one-sided contributions of these different sciences and to develop a unified and informed body of knowledge as the indispensable basis for society's efforts both to prevent crime and to rehabilitate delinquents and criminals," he said.

Laying the ground work, under Desmond's proposals, would be a temporary board composed of Austin McCormick, former commissioner of correction of New York city; Charles L. Chute, executive director of the American Psychiatric Association's Committee on Prisons, and three members appointed by the governor.

Desmond said the institute eventually could provide: Professional training for crime experts; consultation and advice to courts and other agencies; policies that could be incorporated into the state's penal and correctional institutions.

Burglar Is Captured

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Vincent Corbin, 23-year-old burglar who escaped from the Bronx county jail Thursday, was back in police custody today. Cold and hungry, Corbin was captured as he cowering on the top landing of a five-story Harlem dwelling in which his sister lives. He was wearing a blue fedora with his prison clothing and said he had been wandering "all over Harlem" without sleep since he slipped out of a visitors' entrance at the jail while working with a cleaning detail. His escape resulted in suspension of two guards.

Mrs. Lawrence Kelly Tells Sheriff Aides Man Entered House, Demanded Food and Struck Baby

Although a half dozen leads were investigated by Sheriff Smith and his staff, there has been no further development in the mysterious assault at the Lawrence Kelly home at Creek Locks Friday when the three months old twin baby was allegedly struck over the head with a stick by a man who had entered the home demanding food.

Mrs. Kelly told the officers that she had gone to a shed adjoining the garage to get a clothes line Friday about noon and as she opened the door a man grabbed her. She believes he had slept in the shed during the night.

When the stranger grabbed her she broke loose and ran to the house to lock the door but he entered the house and demanded food. While she was preparing food one of her twin children began to cry and she says he man took a stick and struck the child. Mrs. Kelly then attacked the man and tried to defend the child.

In the struggle she was struck on the jaw and rendered unconscious and when she came to the man had left. She went to a neighbor and in a hysterical condition sought aid. Unable to ascertain what the trouble was from Mrs. Kelly in her condition, the neighbor called Sheriff Smith and on arrival the story was learned.

Took Pocketbook, $15
Mrs. Kelly said the man saw a pocketbook hanging on a door knob and remarked, "you have money" and then took the pocketbook. It contained about $15.

The injured child was taken to the Kingston Hospital for treatment. Mr. Kelly was in New York at the time.

Sheriff Smith said Mrs. Kelly had an injury to her jaw, which was considerably swollen last night.

The man was described as being about five feet seven inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds and wore a faded green overcoat. He had a dark beard and a heavy crop of black hair. He wore no hat.

Several leads were investigated but to date no one has been apprehended. It was reported that a man answering this description had boarded a bus in Kingston late Friday. It was reported also a man answering the description had been at St. Remy and Blooming-ton.

To Inspect Properly
Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (AP)—Edwin Pauley, wealthy oil man who with four associates bought Coconut Island, a 16-acre "paradise" in the Pacific for a reported $2,000,000, was en route today on the liner Matsonia to inspect the property. Pauley and his syndicate plan to make the island a retreat for tired business men who wish to work-out in the "islands" by airplane. With Pauley and his wife were Allen Chase of Pasadena, Calif., and Poncet Davis, Akron, Ohio, co-owners and their wives. The island, situated only seven miles from Honolulu was formerly owned by the late Christian H. Holmes. He owned a $1,000,000 home and a tiny fishing village.

Minority Leader Is Opposed To University Commission

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Assembly Minority Leader Irwin Steingut declared himself in "sharp disagreement" today with policies of the temporary commission studying the need for a state university.

The Brooklyn Democratic leader, pointing the way to another bitter legislative fight over the issue, declared the commission "should be drafting a plan for a university rather than studying the need for one." That was the intent of the legislative resolution which established the commission, he asserted.

"Everybody knows we need a state university—we're the only state without one," Steingut told a reporter. "That isn't the question. What we want is a plan, not a study of the need."

The commission, headed by Owen D. Young, retired industrialist, was created by the 1946 Legislature. It was set up on Governor Dewey's recommendation after Steingut and Senator Francis J. Mahoney, Manhattan Democrat, had introduced unsuccessful legislation to establish a university and to authorize a $50,000,000 bond issue.

Executive Secretary J. Hadley Sweet last week announced that the commission, in the midst of its research, would be able to give the Legislature only an interim re-

G.O.P. Plans To Continue Committee

War Investigations Are Scheduled Despite Democratic Senators' Opposition

Protest Is Made

Tydings, Hayden Speak Against Action, Cite Statute

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Republicans, planning a big-scale probe of munitions profits, chartered strategy today for continuing the special Senate War Investigating Committee despite opposition of Democratic senators.

Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) scheduled a conference with Senator Gurney (R-SD), head of the new Armed Service Committee which some Democrats contend should take over the work of the special inquiry group which was under President Truman's chairmanship when he was in the senate.

Brewster already has conferred with other Republican members of the special committee so that, as he put it, "we can present a united front on policy" when the matter comes up for a vote in the Senate, probably Monday.

These G.O.P. senators expect that Gurney will fall in line with party plans and yield any claim the Armed Services Committee might have to conduct war investigations.

The issue came up in the senate yesterday when Democratic Senators Tydings of Maryland and Hayden of Arizona protested against Republican efforts to continue the life of the war inquiry unit and the Small Business Committee.

They argued that the congressional reorganization act is designed to eliminate special committees. It does not ban them, however.

Brewster replied he was "loathe to believe" that the Democrats opposed continuance of the war investigation still to be done, because they feared disclosures it may make would embarrass the administration.

Republicans want the committee continued, Brewster told a reporter, "because it has an experienced and adequate staff and the work still to be done fits in with that already undertaken."

"The Armed Service Committee will take over the job in time, perhaps in six months to a year, but it is not ready now," Brewster said.

He reiterated that one of the first things the committee will tackle is a broad investigation "of war profits and profiteers."

"We need to find out," Brewster added, "to what extent the economic face of America has been altered by the war. We want to look into monopolies and the operations of big business, too."

Montgomery Visits Stalin, Says Premier's Health Good

Moscow, Jan. 11 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery planned to begin a flight back to Britain today after two meetings with Prime Minister Stalin, who he said appeared to be in excellent health.

Stalin was host to Montgomery at a state dinner in the Kremlin last night. British quarters said a warm atmosphere of friendship prevailed. Earlier in the day the two talked in the Kremlin for an hour and 10 minutes. A friendly feeling between them, contributing to better British-Russian understanding, was said to have resulted.

Montgomery reported himself "highly satisfied" with their talk. In a news statement, he declared he was grateful for "the opportunity to establish friendly contact with the army of Russia and thus develop in peacetime that comradeship between our two armies which was formed during the struggle against the treacherous German army."

Yesterday the 59-year-old British field marshal, last year created Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, first was taken on a tour of the Kremlin.

Then he called on his official

Ball Explains His Labor Bill

Sen. Joseph Ball (R-Minn.) explains to newsmen in Washington the latest of his series of labor bills, a measure that would break up industry-wide bargaining between unions and employers. (AP wirephoto)

Labor Bills May Be Put In Concentrated Package

Labor Committee Behind Teachers In Pay Raise Drive

A resolution favoring the teachers of the Kingston public school system in their current drive for increased wages, was passed by the Ulster County Labor Committee meeting in regular monthly session.

Delegates from the Ironworkers Union and the city bus employees sponsored the resolution which was given the unanimous approval of the labor committee.

This action coincides with a postcard indication of approval by citizens of Kingston to the Board of Education. The postcard, addressed to the education board and containing the signature and address of the sender, reads:

"As a friend of education I should like to ally myself with those persons or groups who favor an increase in the salaries of the teachers in the Kingston school system. I shall gladly support the Board in their responsibility to improve substantially this situation."

Supervisors Meet Today

The Board of Supervisors will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of organizing for the year 1947. There will be election of a chairman, clerk and assistant clerk. Routine business will be transacted. It is expected that the present chairman, Edward E. Murray of Shawangunk, will again be elected chairman and that James A. Simpson will be re-elected clerk.

Various Forms of Closed Shop, Bargaining, Wagner Act to Get Hearing

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Senate labor leaders leaned today toward the idea of combining two or three of their labor bills into one big package.

Members of the Senate Labor Committee said privately that the brief hearing planned for the No. 1 bill on the schedule, the Ball-Taft-Smith Bill, now may be combined with the hearings on other proposals such as:

1. The far-reaching bill to abolish industry-wide bargaining introduced yesterday by Senator Ball (R-Minn.). Ball said of this proposal that it would prevent industry-wide strikes, and under it "certainly John L. Lewis would not be an absolute dictator."

2. Proposals to outlaw various forms of the closed shop.

3. Proposals to change the Wagner Act in order to give employers a better bargaining position.

The idea of shoving a large number of labor law changes into one bill has been favored all along by House Republican leaders. Two or three huge omnibus bills have been introduced in the House.

But the 51 Senate Republicans, meeting a week ago, decided on the general strategy of proceeding first with the Ball-Taft-Smith Bill and then holding a longer hearing on other proposals.

In Revised Version

The No. 1 measure, sponsored by Ball, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), and Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), is a slightly revised version of last year's Case Bill. It would set up a federal mediation board, delay strikes 60 days, prevent jurisdictional strikes and require unions to make financial reports.

The theory of holding only brief testimony on this measure is that the Case Bill passed Congress last May—only to be vetoed by President Truman—and needs very little further study.

Last night the C.I.O. disputed this view of the matter and demanded full hearings on the Ball-Taft-Smith Bill.

Ball's "industry-wide" bill would confine collective bargaining negotiations to a single company—or, if more than one company is involved, they must be in the same city or at least within an area no more than 100 miles wide.

Wouldn't Break Unions

He told a news conference yesterday that this would not actually break up unions into small units, but it would require their units to become autonomous in collective bargaining.

He said national labor leaders could not "dictate" to their locals and predicted that if the bill becomes law, powerful national unions will take on the loose character of industry's trade associations.

The bill would not apply to railroads and airlines, which are under the Railway Labor Act. (R-Mich.) introduced a bill to repeal the Wagner Act, abolish the National Labor Relations Board, and

Both Sides Would Keep Up Defenses

Three and Half Billions May Be as Much as Congress Can Hope to Cut

Engel Will Act

Michigan Representative Wants Full Value for Money Spent

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Strong bipartisan opposition to budget slashing that might impair security developed today as army-navy merger advocates seized on the President's spending estimate as a good argument for consolidating the armed services.

The merger move gathered momentum as Republican financial managers, talking of sharp reduction in Mr. Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1, looked hungrily at a projected outlay of $11,000,000,000 for the forces.

On both sides of Capitol Hill the G.O.P. leadership seemed nearing agreement that $3,500,000,000 may be about as much as Congress can hope to pare from the President's estimate.

Chairman Taft (R-N.Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee said the total can be reduced "at least three or four billions." This is the amount Chairman Taft (Ohio) of the G.O.P. Senate Steering Committee has said he thinks can be "squeezed out."

Taft told reporters his contention that appropriations can be cut to slightly over $29,000,000,000 had been widely taken to mean he intended a slash of some $8,000,000,000 in the budget total. He said he referred only to new appropriations and that the budget provides for spending several billions in carry-over funds.

If the Republicans are going to make good their promise to take a big bite out of the President's figures, they conceded, they must do considerable nipping on army and navy funds which account for about 30 percent of the total.

Engel Makes Forecast

"Substantial, honest-to-goodness cuts" in military spending were foreseen by Rep. Engel (R-Mich.). If the army and the navy are merged,

Engel, who will head the appropriations sub-committee handling army funds, told reporters that even without a merger large cuts could be made "without sacrificing essential national defense."

"But I want one dollar of national defense for every dollar spent," Engel added.

One of the first things his committee will do, he said, will be to review the personnel needs of the army to determine whether 1,070,000 uniformed men will be required during the next year.

Rep. Wampler (R-Vt.), who will head the Naval Appropriations Committee, said there is room for reductions in the navy's budget but declined to specify what items could be shaved.

The chairman-designate of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Wampler (R-N.Y.), took a firm stand against "any cuts affecting security" but said he believes reductions are possible through "elimination of duplication of the same functions by the army and the navy."

Vinson's Viewpoint

Rep. Vinson of Georgia, top Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, declared that budget cutting should not be "at the expense of the Armed Forces with world conditions the way they are today." A similar note of caution was sounded by Rep. Thomas (D-Tex.) of the same committee.

The chairman-designate of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Rep. Eason (R-N.Y.), declared "we must keep our Armed Services efficient and strong enough to keep the respect of the rest of the world and discharge our responsibility in Europe and the Orient."

While the House generally supported the President's figures as rock bottom estimates, a few joined some Republicans in differing with the President on the question of slashing taxes. Senator Taft insisted a 20 per cent cut in income taxes is feasible.

But Senator Aiken (R-Vt.) said such a tax slice is "out of the question" until the budget has been balanced and the national debt reduced.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.) remarked "it is very evident that the President has not even scraped the surface of the opportunity for re-instrumentation which exists in every single agency of the government."

Dairy Head Poses U. S. As World Milkshed

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—Demand for American milk products is making the United States the "milkshed of the world," the president of the American Dairy Association says.

D. T. Carlson of Willmar, Minn., pointed out to the state branch of the association yesterday, that an international market for American milk would raise domestic income. He forecast a time when the United States would have "an ample supply of milk and all the dairy foods that are essential to the continued health and well-being of every American."

But delegates to the second annual state meeting also were warned that they must "adjust production to fit demands" and bargain in advance for their pay.

Frank Snyder, president of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency said that "to produce more milk than there is an effective demand for has always proved disastrous."

He emphasized the perishability of milk, which "we cannot hold, to bargain for price, as we could most other farm products."

"Leaders must be constantly on

Kerhorkson Child Struck by Auto Is Hospital Patient

Dona Feldsbuh, 7½-year-old daughter of Dr. Alfred M. Feldsbuh of Kerhorkson, was reported in good condition today at the Kingston Hospital where she was admitted Friday to receive treatment for injuries suffered in an automobile accident near her home at noon. According to an accident report filed with the sheriff's office for Neal Van Wagner, 64, of Kerhorkson, the little girl was struck by his car, headed toward Ellenville, when she ran from behind another auto traveling in the opposite direction.

Van Wagner stipulated in the report that he was driving slowly at the time his car struck the child and knocked her to the pavement. Sheriff George C. Smith is investigating the accident.

The Feldsbuh youngster was removed from the scene to the hospital in the Humiston ambulance.

The alert, Snyder said, "for improving methods of getting a price for milk in keeping with the cost of production."

Agriculture Course Begins on Tuesday School Announces

The agricultural course for veterans and non-veterans at Kingston High School will begin on Tuesday, January 14, at 7 p. m. in the agricultural shop in the Millard building on Dedrick street.

Veterans enrolled for this course are entitled to substantial allowance under the G. I. Bill No. 346. This enables single men to draw $65 monthly and married men $90 monthly. Further information may be obtained January 14, at the opening session.

Council Delays Action on Funds

Aldermen Asl Meeting With B.P.V., Get Letter From Mayor

No action was taken by the Common Council Friday evening on the request of the Board of Public Works, made earlier in the month, for an appropriation of $100,000 for capital improvement of the city's streets, and $166,706.74 for the purchase of new equipment.

Earlier in the month when the request of the Board of Public Works was filed with the aldermen the council voted to notify the Board of Public Works asking that the board meet with the council to discuss the proposed appropriation.

Last night a communication from Mayor W. F. Edelmuth, president of the Public Works Board, was read in which the mayor called attention to the fact that the board met monthly and that council members had been invited to meet with the board at its meetings to discuss city affairs.

In view of the fact that the board will not meet until some time in the future, the mayor wrote, he had designated the superintendent of the board, the assistant secretary and the corporation counsel to meet with the aldermen to discuss the appropriations asked.

Mayor Edelmuth in his letter stated that Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding and Assistant Secretary A. Foster Winfield were authorized to represent the board to discuss the appropriations with the aldermen.

The council, however, did not agree with Messrs. Steuding and Winfield, but recessed the meeting, subject to the call of the chair.

Catekill Woman's Car In Crash With Trailer

Mrs. Evelyn Porter of 16 Williams street, Catekill, escaped with a cut lip and slight knee injury, Friday night, when her car and a tractor trailer were in collision on 9-W about five miles north of Kingston.

State Trooper C. M. Dobbs of Lake Katrine station reported the crash occurred, as explained by those involved, when James E. Sexton of Maricopa, Ind., the truck driver, tried to avoid an unknown car that proceeded on its way.

Jay pavement was blamed for the accident. There was no arrest. The Porter car was damaged considerably.

Certificates Filed

William Cohen of 17 Van Deusen street, Kingston, has filed a certificate with the county clerk stating he is doing business at 29 Greenkill avenue under the name and style of Home Delivery News Service, as successor to Joseph Levano.

Merchants to Meet

A meeting for all retail merchandise dealers will be held in the city court room at the city hall, Monday at 7:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. All merchants concerned and members of the Chamber of Commerce are urged to attend for discussion of four promotional events proposed by Harry Rigby's retail committee.

Flyers Too Polite

It doesn't pay to be too polite to Germans, says a Royal Air Force flyer, back in Belfast, Northern Ireland, from Berlin. Good manners sometimes leads almen to give right of way when they meet Germans but they have been advised by their officers that this is wrong. It is proper to make way for German women but German men should be required to make way for the British. The Germans must not be allowed to forget they are a defeated nation and should be elbowed out of the way, if necessary.

G. I. Advised On Insurance

"Reinstate that insurance," that is the advice being offered by all Veterans' Service workers to former G.I.s who have not maintained the payments on their National Service Life Insurance which they had while in the service. This reinstatement if accomplished before February 1, 1947, may be made by a statement of good health and the payment of two premiums at the same premium rate which was in effect at the time of the lapse of the insurance.

There are only 20 days left to be reinstated under this method and all veterans are urged not to delay. Assistance in accomplishing the insurance reinstatement is offered at the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, 240 Fair street.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Jan. 11—Reports of the financial success of the turkey dinner served to the Lions Club and to Pomona Grange were given Tuesday evening at the meeting of Highland Grange by Mrs. Harvey Craig, in the absence of the chairman of Service and Hospitality committee, Mrs. Albert Schrieber. Mrs. Charles Bell reported on the turkey which went to Edward Perkins. O.P.A. Warns Home Builders to Stick To Price Ceilings

Relaxation of Controls Makes No Difference, Is Word; Will Enforce

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—O.P.A. today warned builders and purchasers of some 700,000 homes started under the Veterans Emergency Housing Program that they must adhere to previous price ceilings despite recent relaxation of home building controls.

While there are no price ceilings on construction started since the housing program was revised on December 24, O.P.A. said in a statement it will continue to enforce ceilings applicable before that date on sales prices and rents.

Not only will builders be required to observe the regulations under which they obtained priorities last year, but veterans who purchase such homes must adhere to the same ceilings if they rent them or resell them, O.P.A. said. In the case of a sale a broker's fee may be added to the sales price.

Builders who obtained priorities prior to December 24, and James Contant and a grandchild, Ralph Contant, all of Esopus. She was a member of the Esopus Methodist Church and of its Ladies' Aid Society. Funeral services will be held at the home in Esopus Tuesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in the family plot in River View Cemetery, Port Jervis.

Mrs. Lena M. Miller Roenn, widow of Henry O. Roenn, died this morning at her home, 104 Stephan street, Newburgh, after a long illness. She was 84 years old. She was survived by one son, John; a daughter, Doris; both at home; a sister, Mrs. Frank Sittman of Kingston, and a brother, Henry Miller of Kingston. She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church and of the Ladies' Aid Society of that church. She also was chairlady of the Downtown Circle of women's services will be held from her late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery.

Miss Nettie Burhans died at her home on John street, West Hurley, early Friday morning. She is survived by two sisters, Miss Lina Burhans and Mrs. Cornelia Bigelow, both of West Hurley; and several nieces and nephews. Miss Burhans had been a church organist at West Hurley for more than 20 years. She was organist at Temple Emanuel for a number of years as well as other churches in Kingston. Funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, 167 Tremper avenue. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday and Sunday evenings between the hours of 7 and 9, and Sunday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock.

The widow of Norman Coutant, she is survived by two sons, Jesse and James Contant, and a grandchild, Ralph Contant, all of Esopus. She was a member of the Esopus Methodist Church and of its Ladies' Aid Society. Funeral services will be held at the home in Esopus Tuesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in the family plot in River View Cemetery, Port Jervis.

Mrs. Lena M. Miller Roenn, widow of Henry O. Roenn, died this morning at her home, 104 Stephan street, Newburgh, after a long illness. She was 84 years old. She was survived by one son, John; a daughter, Doris; both at home; a sister, Mrs. Frank Sittman of Kingston, and a brother, Henry Miller of Kingston. She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church and of the Ladies' Aid Society of that church. She also was chairlady of the Downtown Circle of women's services will be held from her late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery.

Miss Nettie Burhans died at her home on John street, West Hurley, early Friday morning. She is survived by two sisters, Miss Lina Burhans and Mrs. Cornelia Bigelow, both of West Hurley; and several nieces and nephews. Miss Burhans had been a church organist at West Hurley for more than 20 years. She was organist at Temple Emanuel for a number of years as well as other churches in Kingston. Funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, 167 Tremper avenue. Burial will be in Montrose cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday and Sunday evenings between the hours of 7 and 9, and Sunday afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock.

Catholics Want All Scouters at New York Parley

All interested in Scouting are invited to attend the annual meeting of the Catholic Committee on Scouting of the Archdiocese of New York, Wednesday, January 15, at 8 p. m. in the Arch-bishop Hughes Memorial High School, 50th street and Lexington avenue, New York city.

This announcement was made by E. Frank Flanagan, chairman of the Ulster County Lay Committee for Scouting, in a communication sent from the office of the Ulster-Greene Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America.

Mr. Flanagan's comment in the announcement follows:

"This meeting while primarily a meeting of Catholic Scouters is open to Scouters of all faiths so I would urge that you give this invitation complete coverage so that all Scouters of your unit, whether connected with a troop under Catholic auspices or not, may be present at this meeting. His Eminence Cardinal Spellman is going to be on hand for this occasion.

"Here's hoping you will do everything to make this a real success. Please let me know if you plan to attend by dropping a post card to me at Scout headquarters."

Union Hose Auxiliary

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Union Hose Company held its annual meeting Monday night and elected the following officers: president, Mrs. Julia Kane; vice president, Mrs. Elizabeth Curtin; treasurer, Miss Marguerite Kelly; secretary, Mrs. Anna M. Hornbeck. It was planned to hold a card party at the engine house on East Union street January 23. After the business meeting a social hour was held and buffet luncheon served.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Brucker and daughter, Marilyn, of Utica, Mr. and Mrs. William Parker and daughter, Sally, of Freeport, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Osort of San-gerfield and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cherry of Saugerties, were recent dinner guests of Mr. Edgar Rider and daughter, Helen.

John M. LeFevre, senior sales representative in New York with the I.B.M. Corp., has been assigned to the publication field of the company it was announced recently at their world headquarters. He is a member of their 1946 100 per Cent Club. A graduate of Colgate University, B. A., Mr. LeFevre joined I. B. M. in July, 1941, as a student in their sales class at Endicott. On graduation he became a student sales representative in Albany. He entered the Army as a private in February, 1942, and was discharged as a captain last April. He returned to the company as a student sales representative in New York and was promoted to senior representative. He also qualified in two of the company's special sales events.

Good Crop Yields Keep Prices Below Production Costs

son of Williamson reported that growers in this area were dumping at least $800,000 worth of celery for this reason. The waste, he said, represents about one-third of the crop stored this fall. Producers get about two cents for celery which retails at 12 to 25 cents, he added.

The Empire State Potato Club, convening with the vegetable growers, adopted a resolution "insisting on a tariff 'to protect potato growers."

The group also asked for effective support of the potato price at 90 per cent of parity, recording opposition to wage increases and urged that agricultural production be prohibited in a Nassau county area affected by golden nematode, a potato disease.

Plan Is Accepted

The current events teaching plan submitted by Miss Mary M. Kelly has been selected for publication in the periodical "Civic Training" according to a communication received from the editor. Miss Kelly's plan makes provision for individual interests and at the same time encourages students to work toward a democratic goal in understanding political, social, economic and religious phases of American life. The program includes communications with students in foreign countries and provides a continuing interest and understanding on the part of all members of the Social Studies classes as they listen to periodic reports.

Future Engineers

Boys in the "Future Engineers" group have demonstrated their ability to apply their academic knowledge in a practical manner according to Clifford Van Valkenburgh, Faculty Advisor. Their projects include foxhole radios—made from a razor blade, use of the slide rule, and the use of the transit. During one of their field trips they visited the City Laboratory. Some of the boys whose work has been outstanding are Peter Edinger, John Maschino, Louis Edbertson, Walter Davis, John Phelan, Roy White, Paul Butler, Joe Groppe, Franklin Anderson, Charles and John Roach and Charles Lowery.

Models and Crafts Club

The Models and Crafts Club has completed projects in housing and landscaping to scale, novelty lamps, boat and plane models, serving trays, carved wooden rings, jewel boxes and waste baskets. Franklin Anderson, Alan Deegan, Roger Yerry, Bryan Owens, Larry Williams, Louis Egbertson, Gordon Saunders, Richard Young, Robert Mould and George McDonough have been mentioned for special accomplishments.

Owl's Club

The "Owl's Club" has received a shipment of holly from boys and girls in the mountain school at Saylor, Kentucky. This was made known by Miss Jane Kinkade, designer and advisor of the group which includes all 9th year girls in its membership. One of the club's major projects is collecting clothing for this school located in a region where the soil is so eroded that it barely supports the inhabitants. The committee in charge of collections is composed of Barbara Millens, Betty Jaffer, Helen Long, Doris Toms and Phyllis Peters. Mary Howard, Betty Burns, Janice Goodrich and Myrtle Whittaker are distributing the holly.

Girls' Physical Education

The girls' physical education program under the direction of Miss Jane Ward covers a wide variety of activities and makes definite provision for individual development. Girls are given opportunities for leadership in regular classes where they may become squad leaders and in activities where they organize groups, officiate in games and serve as captains of intra-mural teams. Leadership, responsibility, cooperation, self-control, team spirit and sportsmanship are stressed at all times. The afternoon intra-mural basketball league has 145 participants.

Folk and tap dancing as well as modern dancing are open to girls who are interested. These activities develop poise, muscular coordination, rhythm, and bodily grace and in addition provide a knowledge of foreign dances and customs. In modern dancing the girls have been improving their technique in the fundamental movements of walk, skip, run, leap and are learning to react to various moods and types of music.

English Classes

Eighth Year English Classes are studying parliamentary procedure as part of their regular class work. Each pupil is given an opportunity to conduct meetings, serve on committees, plan programs, and lead discussions. From time to time pupils are given an opportunity to present news reports and make announcements in assembly.

Mrs. Laura's Dramatics Club has elected Ronald Steeger as president. Other officers are Janet Davis, vice-president; Joseph Bosco, secretary; and Jean Rider, sub-secretary. Of the original skits submitted by the members Madeline Steinmetz's was judged best. An original poem by Ramona Leonard has been selected for reading in the school assembly. The club has begun practice for their spring play which will be presented some time in April.

TOO GREAT FOR ONE
Merriman Smith, United Press White House Correspondent, concludes his bright book, "Thank You, Mr. President," with an interesting little picture. It is of President Truman, taking an honorary degree from the small Washington College, on the eastern shore of Maryland.

"In the bright sun on the platform looking out over the college campus, the President's hair was white. When he took office a year before he was referred to as 'gray-haired'."

"The President looked down at the 24 graduates seated on the campus lawn. He said he was thankful that under the American system of government, there was sufficient diffusion of power to prevent any one man or group of men from gaining absolute control over the nation."

"Sometimes they think they have it," he said, "but it has never turned out that way and it never will."

"Including himself."

Sometimes one man seems indispensable in his time—but he never is. There was Washington. There was Jefferson. But the affairs of the nation went on acceptably under Adams, Madison, Monroe. There was Lincoln, whose death was a tragedy indeed, especially for the South. His immediate successors were not adequate, yet the nation worked out of that bad time in the end. More lately, there was Roosevelt. There was Cordell Hull as Secretary of State. The other day there was Byrnes in that high position. But the nation is great and no one man can hold all the power at one time or most of the power for a long time. All things change. Byrnes, a good man, indeed, gives way to Marshall, another excellent choice.

But it is the will of the nation which controls.

Any farmer with a gross income of $500 or more is required to file a Federal Income Tax return. Farmers reporting on the calendar year basis have two choices about the time of filing returns. An estimated return may be filed by January 15 and a final one by March 15 or a final return may be filed by January 15.

FRANCE MOVES

Great Britain is stealing the show as far as socialization of industry is concerned, but France, while getting less publicity, is not far behind. Not only has the Bank of France been taken over by the government, but also four large commercial banks; also the public utilities, coal mines and two-thirds of the chief insurance companies. Nor will the process stop there, in the opinion of Dr. David H. Pinkney of the University of Missouri, who recently reported these developments to the American Historical Association.

The new measures have met surprisingly little resistance, far less than the moderate reforms proposed by Leon Blum's government before the war. Many of the old-time industrial leaders have been discredited by their collaboration with the Nazis. France, as part of Europe, is conforming to the general leftward trend. While Communism is defeated by the nations with free elections, the old economic order is rejected with equal firmness.

The French measures would horrify the conservative United States, where they have not been seriously proposed. But they seem to be part of the era which Europe is entering.

AMERICAN SHRINE

Add one to the list of American historic shrines. The 215-year-old house in Quincy, Mass., which was the home of two presidents, John Adams and his son John Quincy Adams, has been turned over to the government by the Adams Memorial Society, and will be operated by the National Park Service.

In addition to its two presidents, it was the home of John Quincy's son, Charles Francis Adams, whose masterful diplomacy as minister to England under Lincoln kept

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

BEHOLD THE PROGRESSIVES!
The Roosevelt amalgam contained an element known as liberals. Most of them now call themselves progressives. So progressives they are. Let them have it their way. They liked the word, liberal, in the old days. It sounded so good even though some of them put fascist controls on us.
Mr. Roosevelt used all sorts of people to serve his various and devious purposes. He used Hague, Flynn, Kelly and Crump. He also used a Communist like Earl Browder and a conservative like Jesse Jones. He was a master at keeping the incongruous together. He managed to keep Bill Green of the A. F. of L., Phil Murray of the C. I. O., and Sidney Hillman, a labor politician, in harness. It was an amazing political feat.

But Roosevelt died and the amalgam broke up. And the liberals found themselves on the outside, not even looking in. As is natural, they are organizing for expression and power. So far, they have expressed themselves: 1. The definitely political under the leadership of Henry Wallace; 2. The middle-of-the-road do-gooders under the leadership of Eleanor Roosevelt; 3. and Freedom House, which is now the right branch of the Left Wing, if you know what I mean. I don't know what I mean, and maybe they don't, but that is how it is.

All these liberals or progressives are now anti-Communists. That is a new departure, for since June 21, 1941, the Communists have generally been welcome everywhere in liberal circles, although Harry Gideonse, President of Freedom House, has usually been attacked by them and Herbert Bayard Swope, its treasurer, once turned down a donation from Earl Browder. So the Communists are now unwelcome. Of course, they say that the Fascists are unwelcome, too. The difference is that the Communists are an organized political force, whereas the so-called Fascists are a few nuts. Fascism died when Hitler died. But the Communists are on hand and they are an active, virulent group, sure of themselves, with a definite philosophy of life. And they work hard at it.

When, therefore, as Freedom House has done, the progressives put themselves in the middle, between Communism and Fascism, they are still playing games. The long list of more than 100 liberals who joined Mrs. Roosevelt's house party in Washington is a potpourri of personalities, some good, some trivial, none very bad, but many frightfully confused. Nothing much will come of this group because it is as individualistic as an ensemble at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Wallace group is more important because it is sharply political and is headed by the astute Henry, who plays politics for big stakes. Henry Wallace lost the Presidency by a political fluke. He was entitled to a Vice-Presidential renomination, but Truman got it apparently for no good reason. Henry was sportsmanlike about it, in the sense that a man who plays for power sometimes has to take two steps backward to go forward. Since the day he was tricked out of the Presidency, Henry Wallace has been so constantly in the limelight that even the gentle Harry Truman could not stand the competition and had to let him out of the Cabinet.

So Henry Wallace became the editor of "The New Republic," which is the weekly opistle to the New Dealers although it is usually financed by millionaires, most of whom believe that the best way not to be gobbled up by the Revolution is to be colleagues of the revolutionists.
Henry Wallace is no dope. Nor is he a starry-eyed astrologer. Nor is he a hick from Iowa. He is an astute, sharp, Middle-Western politician who has managed to retain much of Roosevelt's Left Wing to be held together in the event of a Truman debacle. His group will do everything to defeat the Democrats. They are convinced that the Republicans will alienate the mass vote even should they be in power from 1948 to 1952. Then Wallace steps in for an indefinite period.

Wallace said:
"If the Democratic party woos privilege and betrays the people, it will die and deserves to die. We cannot, therefore, rule out the possibility of a new political party."

ITCHING AT END OF BOWEL

"Itching about the anus, though not a fatal or even a serious malady, can become a disability sufficiently severe not only to prevent the sufferer from doing his best work but even cause him to lose successive jobs and start him on the road to financial ruin."

I am quoting Dr. Campbell M. Gardner, Director of Surgery, Montreal General Hospital, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

I write about itching at the lower end of the bowel because, as stated by Dr. Gardner, it prevents the patient from his best self as he becomes irritable and his morale becomes low.

What is the cause of this intense itching?
There are many causes—certain foods and drugs, nervousness (colitis), underwear too heavy—but from observation, particularly, failing to dry the part well after a bath, excessive perspiration, heavy underwear are the commonest causes. Thread worms are often the cause also.

Where the condition has existed for some time there is a number of cracks in the skin filled with moisture giving a sodden appearance resembling varicose eczema. Naturally, with so many cases of pruritis and there will be many methods of treatment, but most simple cases will clear up if the anus is thoroughly cleaned after defecation, with a moist towel, and then thoroughly dried and perhaps powdered.

Another common cause is the tendency to diarrhea (watery stools) so Dr. Gardner advises that cathartics causing watery stools be avoided and constipation prevented by proper diet, with, if necessary, small doses of milk of magnesia. Where the causes are thread worms, piles, fissures, these conditions should be corrected.

What about cases of pruritis ani in which the cause cannot be found.

In a former article I spoke of injections under the skin of alcohol which helps many cases. Where the injections of alcohol fail to give relief, Dr. Gardner reports a series of 35 cases in which three triangular pieces of skin are removed, resembling a clover leaf, and a light gauze pack is inserted. They are allowed up immediately, can eat what they wish, use liquid paraffin to lubricate lower bowel and bathe three times a day and always after each bowel movement.

W. A. R. Casualties

In Peace Time

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Jan. 9.—It would be unfair to Harold L. Ickes and Joseph Guffey, until just now a senator from Pennsylvania, to say that Senator Theodore Bilbo, of Mississippi, is less beloved of his brethren who jeered the fallen and apparently dying lit Peckwood out of town and in his way to the operating table. He is cheap and he is ornery, but Ickes and Guffey owed an income tax for years and years. Bilbo, at least, never pretended that he lived only to serve the common man, and he deserves a measure of respect for that. His worst fault, and his fatal one, was that he lacked the jovial grace of the late Pat Harrison, often elected in the same state of Mississippi, and under the same laws which enjoyed the friendship of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the respect of many of the same hypocrites who damned Bilbo.

The laws and the system that Bilbo invoked had prevailed in Mississippi and other deep-south states since reconstruction. They were devised before he was born to assure the outnumbered and destitute planters that they would not again be governed and Jim-crowed and taxed by the freedmen, and Bilbo neither wrote them nor changed them by so much as a comma. An oppressed minority had rebelled to become oppressors of a predatory majority and the Congressional hearing of the time revealed horrible persecution and exploitation of the beaten southern Rebels.

On the same ground, Mr. Byrnes, the resigning secretary of state, might be repudiated, and the Bankheads of Alabama and hundreds of other southern politicians, including some state eamen, and certainly including Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida who finds himself in strange company among the New York Communists.

Ten years ago, in Pepper's state, at picking time, his constabls and sheriffs practiced a system of peonage, and they were his constables and sheriffs, for he was even then asserting his command of a political machine that extends far back along the canal levees and into the nearest jukes. At picking time for the harvest, the constables and sheriffs of Mr. Pepper's back country rounded up the Negroes and invited them to work the crops at the going wage, which was not luxurious even by the standards of the swamps. If they refused, they were subject to arrest as vagrants and would work on the road gangs for nothing.

What now has Bilbo done in Mississippi that hasn't been done there and elsewhere in the south, ever since a desperate people rebelled against an earlier generation of Carpetbaggers and scalawags, for God only knows what events led to it in Germany? And what has been his crime, except the exercise of a nasty disposition that he was born with, and no worse, surely, than many another in the party of human y?

To accuse him as a grafter, exploiting the power and influence of his office for private gain is to repudiate the holy example of him who used the presidency to siphon off a public treasury of $196,000 on a job. His operations differed only in detail and magnitude, but not in principle, from that of Representative Coffee of the State of Washington, a Jew Dealer of high degree, whose price for obtaining a contract for a ladder on a hospital job was $2,000. He is but one of a whole galaxy of sticky-fingered impostors whose names will soon be coming into view now that the Republicans control the committee and have the power to examine the income tax returns.

The Department of Justice has been tricky and cunning down to now in smothering tax frauds which have been turned in by agents of the treasury. It has stuffed away and forgotten reports of corruption calling for prosecution, on the pretense, when any explanation at all was given, that these matters required further study. But there came a time in the Harding administration when the department itself came under investigation, and that probably will happen again.

The total repudiation of Bilbo as a regular, organization Democrat was dictated not by honest motives but by the Communist hypocrisy of fakers in both parties who would be Bilbos themselves in the same circumstances. Mississippi, a Democratic state, which elected him, certainly cannot be said to have taken that means of disowning the man. He was good enough for Mr. Roosevelt when he was first elected on the understanding that here was an avowed anti-Communist, as Huey P. Long who would fight Huey his own way and keep Huey from invading Mississippi to defeat Senator Harrison. He was welcome then and his election methods, which were well known, were not questioned, because there was dirty work to be done on a persistent and dangerous mocker. Huey may be charged against him as a doublecross, no worse.

As the filibuster started, Senator Overton, of Louisiana, met Senator Brewster, of Maine, in a hall and stopped to gossip. Brewster was next on the list to be sworn in and he was impatient. "I told the boys," Senator Overton said, "to just keep on talking!"

Huey, in his day, had read the funny papers aloud, read his fan mail aloud and discoursed on pot flicker, and Senator Overton owed the first election to Huey by a proper act as highway robbery. Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, was sent to New Orleans to "investigate," and, at one point, when Huey turned out his guns and the militia, Connally had to climb the fire escape to reach the room where the hearings were held. Never were the authority and dignity of the Senate so flagrantly mocked, but Senator Connally, his report completed, told his colleagues that fraud had been done and dropped it on the table without recommendation. And that was the end of that and the start of Senator Overton's illustrious career.

I would argue that Bilbo, by his stony vulgarity, his candor where stony men evade and pretend, has forced a issue with the Roosevelts, Mr. and Mrs. would not have dared to stand upon it, knowing that if they did, he never would have carried his hip-pocket province south of the line and would not have been President. They, and Ickes, too, and ten thousand parasites of the northern fortunes and their vanity in the years since '32, all knew, more south four times and were willing beneficiaries of a process which, now that all is lost and their regime discredited, they suddenly find abominable.

The graft is another matter, covered by other and higher precedents, it may be challenged only by those with clean hands, but not by men and women who never forgot that a certificate of election was a ticket to the gravy train. So, aside from the draft, Bilbo stood accused only of traditional Mississippi and deep-south practice. He is condemned, not for anything he had done, but for his manners, who compare well with the manners of those who could not resort to his language because it is the only tongue they know.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

Yesterday Hal Boyle got trapped into advising Horace, an inquiring swain, how to pick a wife. And now you want to learn how to live with her?
There is only one sure way—be pseudo-hen-pecked.
This is the only way you can dominate her, and if you don't dominate her you won't have a real marriage.
I see your eyes are a little glazed, Horace, you don't understand how you can dominate the good woman by being "pseudo-hen-pecked." Let me explain:
The biggest flops in matrimony are the masterful boys who thump their chests and storm around the house pointing out that they are men and the wife is a woman, and that the Lord made Adam first and Eve was an afterthought.

She Won't Take Guff
This is nonsense—'as every woman knows'—and no sensible wife is going to put up with such guff. So throttle down, Horace. Unless your wife is so narrow-brained her eyes meet like two cars coming together down a one-way street, she thinks of you more as a willful puppet than leader of the herd. You're the fireman, Horace, not the engineer, on this trainride together.

So did her along in the one long deusion wives never tire of—the one grand dream they hug to their sad little hearts all their lives—that you are just "a grownup boy," and that they know better than you do.

Keep Illusion Flowering
Whether they really do know better doesn't make any difference. Just water her illusion and keep it flowering, and you'll get a loving slave as well as a happy wife.

Turn over the toy matters of your life to her, Horace. Like money? Don't bawl her out for buying that dress that cost more than it did to build the department store where she bought it. Let her handle the finances—of course, cash your paycheck and take out

Can Be Too Affectionate
Don't tell her she's "the only woman" too often. A husband too affectionate bores a wife. A husband who is almost-but-not-quite-affectionate-enough keeps a wife on her toes in a lovely mental teeter-totter. It also gives her a mild complaint to gossip over with other wives—a necessity in her life.

Be generally somewhat helpless and then when the children come along, Horace, she won't forget you. She'll love you like you were one of her boys, and you won't be out in the cold.

How to Scare Her
Let her make every decision around the house you can. Just put your foot down once in a while to scare her, and she'll live in deusion for the rest of her life. You'll get really mad and take back the strings of your married life.

Do all this, Horace, and your friends may think you're "hen-pecked." But you'll know better. You'll have a nice lazy life with plenty of time to think about improving the service to qualify for the deputy fire chief examination, which would prevent a veteran from taking this examination. A great figure in world history once referred to an incident which "smelled to high heaven."

Yours very truly,

Firemen's Examination
Woodstock, N. Y.
Jan. 10, 1947

Editor,
Kingston Daily Freeman
Dear Sir:
Will you please find space in your fine paper for this little item; we owe so much to our "boys" who did their duty.

A list recently published relative to the promotional examination for captain of the Kingston Fire Department showed, six men passed; five veterans and one non-veteran (non-veteran to place last under veterans' preference) leaving approximately six veterans, some with two or more years of foreign service who received notice of one word explanation "Failed."

This seems to be a sequel to the recent ruling by the Kingston Civil Service Commission setting ten years of service to qualify for the deputy fire chief examination, which would prevent a veteran from taking this examination. A great figure in world history once referred to an incident which "smelled to high heaven."

Yours very truly,
MATHILDA SHULTIS

The World Today

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
American and British representatives to Warsaw over the Polish election set-up serve merely to help keep the record straight. It is too late now—has been too late ever since the Moscow-dominated government was established.

Regardless of what the rules and regulations for voting might be, the Poles have been given some very concrete lessons in how to vote. Thousands have been jailed on various excuses stemming from the fact they have been too overt in support of Vice Premier Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant party. Others have been "detained" by authorities who sought to convince them they were "mistaken" in signing nominating petitions.

We can only surmise what "persuasive" methods have been used, over and above the normal threats of loss of jobs, etc. It apparently worked well enough, however, to give the government an excuse for voiding opposition.

Of the 46,000 electors in 20 districts after a sufficient number had recognized their "mistake" and withdrawn their signatures.

The government also has organized a militia whose duty at the polls will be similar to those of the poll-watchers put out by some political machines in the United States. The Polish watchers, however, have some considerable advantages. They are armed, militarily trained, and openly represent the government.

In the face of all this with which we have become familiar through watching Eastern European elections since the war, the Polish Peasant party has decided not to boycott the election, preferring to make the best showing possible.

Whether boycott, as some feared, would have hastened the trend toward civil war in Poland is a question. But the atmosphere among the 2,500,000 voters in the 10 districts left without a choice of tickets will be watched closely. So will the reaction among other millions who will be mustered at the polls January 19 by fear, technicalities and actual overt acts.

What might happen if several million peasants and the armed underground decided to take things into their own hands is hard to contemplate, especially if it resulted in Russian military aid for the Warsaw satellites.

When the U. S. and Britain protested a similar election situation in Hungary some months ago, Russia replied that we were seeking to interfere in Hungarian internal affairs. Now the Russians say the only irregularities in Poland are committed by "rightwing terrorists," call the election set-up "perfectly democratic," and kiss off the suggestion that they break their agreement that Europe's people shall live under governments of their own free choice.

Too many Poles this choice must seem restricted to:
A vote for a foreign-sponsored government whose continuation could bring economic sanctions by the western powers and a resultant shortening of rations.
A vote for the Polish Peasant party, almost certainly to be followed by penalties from Warsaw, and quite possibly by a crack over the head.

DDT Powder Held Safe. Makers of DDT in South Africa challenged the report of a Johannesburg man that through allergy he had developed a weeping eczema after dusting his dogs with a DDT powder. They proved by scientists in various countries that the powder is toxicologically safe.

Clinton Avenue Church Launches Crusade Program

The Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, which with churches throughout the denomination is participating in the nation-wide "Crusade for Christ," row in its third year, has launched the third phase of the Crusade—"Stewardship."

Harley A. Miner, who will lead the Clinton Avenue Church in this phase of the Crusade, met with the official members of the church Monday night and explained plans for the year. It was stated that "The whole program of the church for 1947 will be built around Stewardship. Every member of the church will be called upon to share in the promotion of this vital phase of church life."

Members of the committee for the Clinton Avenue Church are: the Rev. William R. Peckham, Harley A. Miner, W. J. Ryder, Miss Elsie Magee, Frank Hyatt, Mrs. Floyd Spencer, E. J. Schoones, D. N. Secore, Mrs. A. Donnad, Mrs. Harley A. Miner, Mrs. Clayton Smith, Miss Lila Smith, Miss Clara E. Sulpagh, Mrs. Ida LeFever, Miss Jacqueline Kirk, Mrs. Thomas Miller, William Stall and all official board members.

In 1945, the first year of the Crusade, emphasis was laid on finances and $27,000.00 were raised to help rebuild devastated churches in foreign countries and help promote the work of the church in America.

The second phase of the Crusade, in 1946, was Evangelism and its promotion brought more than one million members into the church.

This year Stewardship is being emphasized and in 1948, the fourth year, efforts will be directed toward renewed interest and increased attendance in the church schools.

THE CAMERA CORNER

Industry As A Picture Source

There is a fruitful source of picture material and one often neglected by the amateur who has a notion that the best photos are those that are merely pretty. It is right at hand in the backyard, so to speak, of your own city. It is the photography of industry.

You will find few self assignments more rewarding, especially in winter when the most hackneyed out-of-doors snapshooting is not always alluring. Moreover, now that the war is over, it is easier to fling an entry into plants that were formerly making war products on the secret list. A word of warning, first of all. Always get permission—in writing if possible—before you trespass. It will save you endless arguments and explanations. And don't abuse your privilege by getting in the way of workmen or machinery.

The Obvious and Spectacular In the beginning, you will probably be most excited by the obvious and spectacular—engines in the freight-yards furiously spouting steam and smoke on a frosty morning, skyrocketing chimneys tugs awkwardly nudging a liner into her pier, the silver curves of an oil cracking plant, the stately ugliness of a blast furnace, the powerful turbines and transformers of an electric power plant.

All right, take them all. But don't stop there. The real photographer is the man who can see a picture where nobody before saw one. Often it's only the addition of a new angle and unusual lighting that give a familiar object new life and meaning. Mostly it's the acquired ability to see texture, pattern and significant contrast. A non-photographer would pass by without a second look.

Let's not get too abstract though. Tools and machinery, striking as they can be in themselves, have real meaning only in their use by man. If you can show their function as well as their beauty, your pictures will be that much more vivid. In short, try to tell the story.

Understand the Subject To do this you must know what it's all about. Walk around and study the subject before using your camera. Ask questions. Then show the dramatic relationship between man and the machine.

As for equipment, make the best use of what you have. As a professional photographer would use the best camera for this type of work. Some prefer a twin lens reflex, some a Speed Graflex, but probably every kind of camera has been used successfully. However, you will usually need a flashbulb set-up for most indoor work. You won't find it an easy kind of photography. There's dust, noise, heat and cold and a few smells to contend with. Each shot is another problem to lick. But who knows? Perhaps a picture you've taken is one that the company will want to buy. There may be more than fun and experience in it for you.

Religious Radio Programs

Under the auspices of the Kingston Ministerial Association, in cooperation with Station WKNY, the following broadcasts of Christian faith and life will be presented during the coming week: The morning service of worship, Sunday, 11 to 12 o'clock, from the sanctuary of the Reformed Church of the Comforter, with sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Raymond J. Fontana.

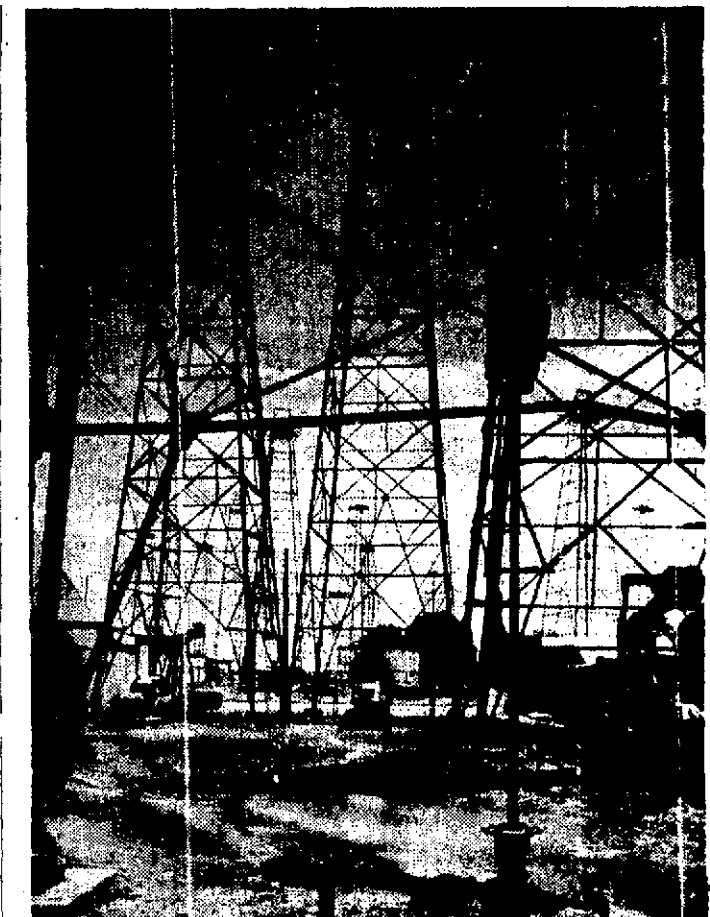

Each day, except Sunday, at 7:35 a.m., "Victorious Living," a five-minute transcribed program produced by the International Council of Religious Education. Monday through Friday, at 8:45 a.m., the morning devotionals with the following ministers officiating as indicated: Monday, the Rev. Philip N. Saunders of the Central Baptist Church; Tuesday, the Rev. James H. Russell of the Congregational Church of Saugerties; Wednesday the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool of the First Reformed Dutch Church; Thursday, the Rev. Robert T. Schellenberger of St. John's Episcopal Church; Friday, the Rev. Frank L. Gollnick of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church. On Saturday, at the same hour, the Sunday school lesson for the following day will be presented by the Rev. Oscar Jensen of the Reformed Churches of Mt. Marion and High Woods.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, January 11—Reformed Church, the Rev. Gerard J. Koster, pastor—Morning worship service at 9:45, at which time the Rev. Mr. Koster will deliver his farewell message. He leaves next week for Florida where he has accepted a call to preach. Sunday school will convene at 9.

St. John's Episcopal Church—Morning worship service at 10 and Sunday school at 9:15. The January meeting of the Marbletown American Legion will be held in the High Falls fire hall Thursday evening, January 16, at 8:30. The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet at the same time.

Mrs. Bessie K. Eastman is ill. Charles Dillman was taken to the Benedictine Hospital on Wednesday. Mr. Dillman lived here with his nephew, Alvin Nicholas. William Sutton also has returned to the hospital. The Ladies' Aid of the Reformed Church met with Mrs. Alf Tolk on an all-day meeting Thursday. The Mothers' Club of the High Falls school planned a dance at their meeting on Wednesday afternoon. It will be held in the fire hall in the near future. Mrs. Ernest Jansen attended in New York city a performance of "Carmen" at the Metropolitan Opera House last week. She also saw "Lady Windermere's Fan," starring Cornelia Otis Skinner.

PICTURE OF THE WEEK: More than a mere documentary record of an American industry, the spider web tracery of these oil wells makes a picture pattern that is fascinating in itself. And it's as true and good a picture of the American landscape as those of Maine's rocky coast or a country road in Iowa. It was made with a Deardoff camera using Ansco Superpan Portrait film. The exposure: 1/5 second at F 32. No filter was used because a light sky was needed to bring out the silhouettes of the derricks.

Is there any way to remove developer stains from trays? ANSWER: A dilute solution of acetic acid (one ounce or two of 25 per cent acid for an 8x10 tray) will remove the stains. Fill the tray with it and let it stand overnight. The use of the following solution is also an excellent one for a tray cleaner: Potassium Bichromate .3 oz.; Water 32 oz.; Sulphuric Acid 5 oz.

A Tip in Time

Print drying rolls and blotters sometimes become unsuitable for use if allowed to remain damp. If will pay you to dry them thoroughly several times a year in a warm oven or in the sun.

The Temp-Control Tray, made by the Cine Pro Corp., New York City, will, it is claimed, maintain all solutions used in color and black-and-white, developing and printing at even temperatures under all weather conditions. The secret is circulating water between two hermetically sealed, stainless steel trays.

Note to Camera Fans

The Camera Corner is designed for your benefit. Do you know a lot of the questions but not all the answers? Send your questions to The Camera Corner, Grand Central Annex, P.O. Box 73, New York, N. Y. They will be answered in The Photo Forum or by mail.

Would you like to submit your own favorite photo for analysis in The Camera Corner? Send your best glossy print of 4 (or negatives with technical data, such as camera, film, lighting and filter used, to the above address. If accepted for use, we will pay you five dollars.

Vocational and Guidance Center At Vassar College

The Veterans Administration today announced the opening of a new Vocational Adviseement and Guidance Center at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie.

Thomas Fitzgerald, acting manager of the Albany Regional Office, Watervliet, said the Center was established to enable veterans in Sullivan, Ulster, and Dutchess counties to secure easy access to free vocational guidance and adviseement.

Under an agreement drawn up between Vassar College and the Veterans Administration, the College will operate and administer the testing program. The V. A. will furnish personnel to determine the veteran's eligibility and to complete the counseling service.

V. A. Guidance Centers, Mr. Fitzgerald explained, were originally intended for the exclusive use of veterans with service-connected disabilities who were receiving or planned to pursue education under the special law (Public Law 16) which pertains to disabled ex-service men and women.

Mr. Fitzgerald said the service is now available to all eligible veterans who can present evidence of an honorable discharge. The Guidance Center, Mr. Fitzgerald said, was of particular value to veterans planning to further their education in high schools, trade schools, colleges, universities, and in on-the-job training. The Center can assist veterans to select a suitable occupation in line with their abilities, talents, and aptitudes. This should help veterans to save time, effort, and future disappointments, Fitzgerald said.

Veterans who desire this service at the Guidance Center are advised to contact Harold C. McCourt, V. A. Vocational Advisor, Vassar College, Poughkeepsie. This should be done either by telephone or mail because it is advisable for a veteran to secure an appointment prior to reporting at the Center. Veterans should bring a copy of their discharge papers when arriving at the Center for appointment.

Evacuations May Stop The British Government is expected to announce abolishment of capital punishment for five years, beginning with 1949, London reports. Bad influence of executions on other prisoners were among the reasons assigned for the reported decision.

Two G.E. Employees Get Suggestion Awards

(Registered U. S. Patent Office) By Walt Disney

Two employees of the General Electric Company in Saugerties, one a Kingston resident, have received awards for their suggestions made to fit the slogan, "There is always a better way."

Harry Woods, of his city received $50 for his suggestion, and George Kasel of Saugerties, $35. The award was the third won by Mr. Woods, and Mr. Kasel's second. R. L. Priestley, plant manager, made the presentations.

The General Electric Company encourages all employees to submit suggestions to improve quality, increase production, reduce costs, and maintain safety standards, in the belief that "There is always a better way."

Scott Meets Highlander

The Evzones Palace Guard, in Athens, recently were visited at their barracks by five members of the Scottish Highland Light Infantry, Robert Garland, Charles McNeil and Roland McNab, of Glasgow, and two fellow privates, The Evzones, who are Highlanders from the mountains of Northern Greece, eagerly discussed Scottish piping and dancing with the visitors. The Scottish kilts, as a uniform, dates back to 1725, and Evzone uniform to 1832.

Chiefs Battle Elizabeth in Pro League Game Tonight; Record Crowd Expected for Schatzel-Michaels Bowling Special

Marines to Meet Rienzios in Prelim At City Auditorium

First Half of Twin-Bill Stated for 7:45 P.M.; American League Tilt to Start 9:15 P.M.

This is basketball night here in Kingston and another big cage double-header is scheduled for the municipal auditorium boards starting at 7:45 o'clock with a preliminary and winding up with a regular American Professional League contest featuring the Kingston Chiefs and Elizabeth Braves. The main tilt will get underway at 9:15 o'clock.

Coach Lou Schaefer's Y.M.C.A. quintets—the Marines and Rienzios A. C.—will collide in the first encounter at 7:45 o'clock. Both clubs are members of the City Y.M.C.A. Basketball League.

Seats Still Available Although the sale of reserved seats for tonight's American League attraction has been unusually heavy it is reported that there are still several choice reserved seats available for last minute purchasers. These may be procured by calling the American Legion Building, 1914. Season tickets also may be obtained.

Smarting under the last defeat handed out to them by the Brooklyn Goliaths New Year's Night, Coach Rudy Cooney's Chiefs are determined to regain the winning column tonight with a lopsided victory over the invading Skeeter State cagers. "We will be at top strength for this contest," Cooney asserted this morning "and I'm sure the boys will open up fast to bring home the victory."

Cooney is expected to open with Marlin "Red" Powers and either Art Lockwood or Sid Bleier at forwards; Jerry Russell, center; and Joe Dinkwood and Larry Dodick in the backcourt. Lockwood is still on the indefinite list due to his recent illness. Up until New Year's Night Cooney has been using Art only as a reserve player but if Art's physical condition permits, he'll get the starting nod. Elizabeth, winner of seven and loser of 10 in the Southern Division, is currently holding down fourth place in that group. Win for either club tonight would better their chances for taking over the third place playoff position in either division.

Leo Merson, former Long Island University star, promises a lot of action for Kingston fans tonight. Leo, the coach of Elizabeth, had to say this morning "The Braves have been slow in coming around since the season opened but I've noticed a big improvement during the past couple of weeks. The boys are really hot now and Kingston had better look out tonight."

Team Has Height Perhaps Merson knows of what he speaks, particularly when one looks over the Brave roster which includes such top-notch college stars as Hy Golden and Al Moore of St. John's University; Bobby Dorn and Steve Juenger of Temple; Bob Merrick, Springfield College; and Dick Murphy from Manhattan.

The Braves have a fast-breaking team built on height which is very evident with all of the boys listed over the six foot mark. Dorn tops the squad with a height of six feet, six inches. Jackie Hueson, formerly of West Virginia University is six, five.

Tonight's starting lineup:

Kingston	Elizabeth
Lockwood	LF	Moschetti
or Bleier	RF	Gottkin
Powers	RF	C
Russell	LG	Dorn
Dinkwood	LG	Hueson
Dinkwood	RG	Merrick

Barney Ross Is Winner Over Drugs

Pacific Veteran, Ex-Ring Champ Out of Hospital

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 11 (AP)—Scrappy Barney Ross, one-time king of the welterweights and survivor of tough Pacific fighting, has scored another knockout—this time over the narcotic habit. The much-decorated veteran of Guadalcanal won his latest bout in four months. The scene: The huge U. S. Public Health Service Hospital in Lexington, where he has been confined since his arrest last night. Ross was discharged Tuesday. Ross declined to discuss his immediate plans.

Dr. Victor M. Vogel, medical officer in charge of the institution, announced last night Ross would be discharged Tuesday. Ross declined to discuss his immediate plans.

Dr. Vogel said Ross would return for brief observation before final discharge within 60 days.

BOARD AND PINS: Watching the field of competitors in the recent American match championship in Chicago, squad after squad, shooting across 12 alleys, brought out the interesting point that, with only a few exceptions, the 144 stars used the board or line system.

In other words, they picked out a board along which to direct the ball, rather than aim at a spot just beyond the foul line.

Andy Varipapa, the new match ruler, combines the line system with "spelling a pin." First he sets himself (stance) at a measured position to the left of the gutter line, the distance depending on the action of the alley—whether it is slick or slow. He allows for less turn or hook of the ball on a slick surface.

Next he picks a board that his ball is to follow. He lines the board up with a pin, either the 3 or the 4, and keeps his eyes ON THE PIN during the stride or run to the foul line. He knows that if his stance is perfect the ball will be delivered on the edge-board.

His eyes on the pin assures him of a full follow-through, merely permitting the arm to swing through directly AT THE PIN. In this way the arm comes up in a level arc, at the foul line, and with the lifting action the fingers apply hook spin on the ball. By all means, adopt the board-and-pin system. It is natural, effective. Practice it. (Copyright 1947 by John F. Dille Co.)

Injunction Plea Denied by Bergan in Basketball Case

Jan. 11.—A motion for a temporary injunction to prevent the Buffalo and Rochester Professional National League basketball teams from playing exhibition games in Schenectady, a member of the New York State League, was denied today by State Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergan. The Associated Press has reported.

The action, brought by the State League, was aimed at a court ruling on the validity of the National Basketball Association's territorial rights agreement.

The agreement bans any club in the association from exhibition games within 10 miles of the home city of another association team.

Justice Bergan set the week of January 27 for court hearing on a motion for a permanent injunction.

Mulloy Wins Title Adelaide, Australia, Jan. 11 (AP)—Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, Fla., won the South Australian Tennis Tournament Championship today by defeating Billy Talbert, of Indianapolis and Wilmington, Del. 6-5, 8-6, 9-7. Mulloy won by breaking the tie-breaker in the final set.

New Cornell Coach Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—George K. (Lefty) James, assistant football coach at Cornell since 1936, will be head coach this year. The job was vacated by Ed McKeever at the end of last season.

Feller Sets His Goal Kansas City, Jan. 11 (AP)—Fireball Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians has set his goal for the 1947 baseball season at "30 victories." Feller, who won 26 for a weak Cleveland club last season, stopped over here last night to visit co-owner Tom Baird of the Kansas City Monarchs. He is en route from Dallas, Tex., to Van Meter, Ia., for a brief visit with his mother and sister before joining his wife and 13-month-old son Stephen in Chicago Monday.

Dozen Colleges Are After New Coaches For Grid Squads New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The "help wanted" shingle was out at at least a dozen colleges today after another flurry of job-trading. More than a score of pickupin (tutors have turned in their suits since the season's close, and relatively few of the vacancies have been filled.

Latest advertisements for help are from the University of Maryland, Lafayette and Colby, which lost their head coaches yesterday. T. M. Clark Shugart resigned the second time, from Maryland, E. E. (Hooks) Mylin bowed out at Lafayette and Danny Lewis quit the little Maine school.

Meanwhile, two vacancies were filled. Ed McKeever, who had resigned from Cornell, signed a three-year contract as head coach at the University of San Francisco, and Cornell selected George (Lefty) James as his successor at Ithaca. James had been an assistant at Cornell 11 years.

At San Francisco McKeever succeeds Maurice (Clipper) Smith, who left college ranks to direct the National Football League's Boston Yanks.

Colgate Job Open James' appointment at Cornell leaves Colgate as the only upstate New York school seeking a coach. That job was vacated by 68-year-old Andy Kerr, who retired after reaching the school's 40th limit.

The vacancy at Syracuse left by the resignation of Biggie Munn to take over Charlie Bachman's job at Michigan State had been filled previously with the elevation of Assistant Coach Reives Bay-singer.

New York University is seeking a replacement for Jack Weinheimer, who stepped down after the close of the season. Bob Underhill replaced Walt Hinderer with Buff Donelli, former coach at Duquesne and late of Lou Little's staff at Columbia.

Virginia Military Institute still has to fill the vacancy left by resignation of Allison (Pooley) Hubert. Kansas State seeks a successor to Hobbs Adams who left the coaching job but continues as athletic director.

Old Job Is Open Frank Kimbrough's old job at Baylor is open as Kimbrough is reported to be the chief candidate for the vacancy at Arizona State College at Tempe, where Steve Coutech resigned. Idaho does not plan to name a successor to J. A. (Babe) Brown until next summer.

On the coast, California is seeking a successor to Frank Wick-ham and Oregon out to get a replacement for Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver. Jim Bradshaw left the Fresno State head job but is staying on in the athletic department.

Alonso A. Stagg's job at College of the Pacific has been filled by Larry Siemerling, and Mr. Football" has gone to join his son, A. A. Stagg, Jr., at Syracuse.

Marie Russ of Nat'l Board to Work With Local Y.W. Committees; To Speak at Annual Meeting

Miss Marie Russ, staff member of the National Board, Young Women's Christian Association, will arrive in Kingston Monday to spend four days working with the board, committees and members of the Y.W.C.A. She will assist the local association in formulating plans for the future of the work in Kingston as preparations are being made to move into the new building on Clinton avenue. She will also be the speaker at the annual dinner meeting Thursday.

Miss Russ, a graduate of University of Kansas who also holds a master's degree from Columbia University and a degree of Bachelor of Divinity from New Testament Seminary, was recently assigned to the newly opened national office for the Eastern Region in New York city. Miss Russ has also taken postgraduate courses in sociology and religious counseling at the University of Chicago; in psychiatry and case work at the University of Pittsburgh and in community organization in the New York School of Social Work. Secretary for religion with the National Board from 1930 to 1933, Miss Russ left to accept the position of education membership secretary in the Pittsburgh Y.W. and later was director of the association in Stamford, Conn. In 1942 she rejoined the National Board staff where she specializes in administrative problems.

She will meet with the board of directors and planning committee of the local association Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the finance committee. Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. the personnel committee, Tuesday at 3 p. m. the business, professional and industrial committee as well as the Business Girls' Club cabinet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday she will work with the following committees and their programs: Nominating committee for 1948, 10:30 a. m. membership committee, 3:30 p. m. Y-Teen committee, 7:30 p. m. Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, the camp committee will meet and at 6:30 p. m., all members and friends of the Kingston Y.W.C.A. are invited to attend the annual dinner and meeting.

Dinner Reservations

The dinner will be served by the hospitality committee in charge of Mrs. Charles Terwilliger. Reservations must be made by Monday noon. Those who cannot attend the dinner are urged to attend the business meeting and address at 7:30 p. m.

Plans for the program at the annual meeting are being made by Miss Ethel Hull, Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, and Mrs. Ward Brigham. They have secured Mrs. Bert Bishop, who will play two selections, and Miss Dorthea Groves, who will sing two vocal numbers. The Rev. R. J. Ponder will give the invocation.

Moving This Month

Remodeling and redecorating the new Y.W.C.A. home on Clinton avenue at Maiden Lane is progressing rapidly under the leadership of Mrs. Frederick LeFever. It is expected that moving will take place the last week in January. The planning committee, headed by Mrs. Herbert Fisher, president of the association, has charge of the plans for the program in the new building.

Philip Swartz Marries Hilda Israel in New York Chapel Sunday

The wedding of Miss Hilda G. Israel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Israel, 250 Broadway, to Philip Swartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swartz, 294 Broad street, Providence, R. I., took place Sunday at 2 p. m. in the chapel of the "400" Club New York city. Rabbi Samuel Turk of Temple Pri Eretz Chiam officiated.

The chapel was banked with white cut flowers and ferns. Grieg's "I Love You," and "Be-cause," were sung.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white Skinner satin gown with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and flowing train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a headpiece of white satin flowers. She carried two white orchids on a white ribbon with sweet peas attached to the streamers.

Miss Lillian J. Israel was maid of honor for her sister. She wore an orchid-gray marquisette gown with fuchsia ostrich tips in her hair and fuchsia gloves. She carried a colonial bouquet of shaded sweet peas and roses which blended with her accessories. Harry Posnak of New York city, a school mate of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

A reception was held at the "400" Club for 100 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Swartz left for a wedding trip to Florida. Upon their return they will reside in New York city.

Mrs. Swartz is a graduate of Kingston High School and is employed in a New York bank as teller. Mr. Swartz is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is a textile chemist.

Mrs. Diaz Speaks on Dolls To Y. W. C. A. Women's Club

Mrs. Ivonne Diaz of Saugerties was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Women's Club Thursday afternoon. She showed several of the dolls from her doll collection and gave a brief history of each. Among the more interesting were the "Little Jesus" doll from Italy, which might have been used for display in a church at Christmas time; the Jenny Lind Doll; and wax doll fashioned to represent some daughter of a family. Mrs. Diaz said she was particularly interested in American dolls or dolls used by American children.

Many of the members brought interesting antiques or rare items of jewelry, candlesticks, glassware, dishes, and trinkets which were displayed.

Announcement of the two important programs were made. The Music Appreciation Group will meet with Mrs. William S. Jackson, January 16 and the Drama Group at the Governor Clinton Hotel, January 23. Any members of the club who are interested in dramatics are invited to join the Drama Group.

Tea was served following the meeting under the direction of Mrs. Victor Russo, Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw presided at the tea table. Mrs. Harry Beatty was hostess for the day.

Hospital Group to Meet Monday for Dance Plans

A special meeting of the Kingston Hospital Ladies Auxiliary has been called for Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Nurses Home. Final plans for the annual dance will be made. The dance will be held Saturday evening, February 1, at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Child Study Club Will Hold Benefit Card Party Next Month

Kingston Child Study Club met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Conrad J. Gross, Richmond Park. A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. George Sheehan, president, during which February 13, was announced as the date for the club's benefit card party to be held at the home of Mrs. John Bott, Andrew street.

It was also announced that Miss Edyth Barry, specialist in child development and family relations would be the guest of the club at the next meeting January 30, at the home of Mrs. John Edwards, 186 Main street.

An instructive article on infant feeding problems was read by Mrs. Henry Bruck.

The club is studying the school aged child in the home and the specific subject for the evening was "Growing Through Play." The paper was given by Mrs. Donald Swan in which she emphasized the importance of intelligent guidance paradoxically combined with wholesome neglect in supervising a small child's play.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Edmund Cleonan.

Renters Are Victimized

Gangsters building houses on vacant lots for "key money," in Shanghai, China, have been identified as shrewd racketeers and enforcers. Their system is to move their construction crews into vacant lots without permission of the owners, remove the debris, built squatter huts of straw and bamboo, collect heavy bribes from eager home-hunters and then leave them to face the music.

This Lassie Shows Scar

A woman in Roseville, New South Wales, took Lassie, her five months' old kelpie bitch, to the local vet for a minor operation, requiring one stitch. Now, when friends foregather, the owner calls in her dog and says: "Come now, Lass, show them your operation." The dog immediately drops to the floor to display her scar.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Determined
Eaton's Corners, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—When schoolteacher Clarence Foot's automobile broke down in the midst of ice storms and blizzards it didn't stop him. He drove his farm tractor three miles to and from school daily.

Name for Office
Portland, Ore., Jan. 11 (AP)—The Portland chapter of the Izaak Walton League has elected its president.

He's Izaak Walton, a Portland resident for 21 years, who claims descent, 10 generations removed, from the original Apostle of Angling in England.

Need a Barge?
San Diego, Calif., Jan. 11 (AP)—The Navy has enough difficulty with surplus property of its own without the Army giving it a barge. Today the Navy admitted it would like to get rid of B.C.L. 1128, towed here last September (apparently for some reason now forgotten) by an Army tug and moved to a Navy buoy.

When a storm broke up the buoy the barge was tied at a pier. Now the Navy needs the space and can't find anyone authorized or willing to take the barge.

Judge Solves Lots
Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—Harry Williams' house finally found a home.

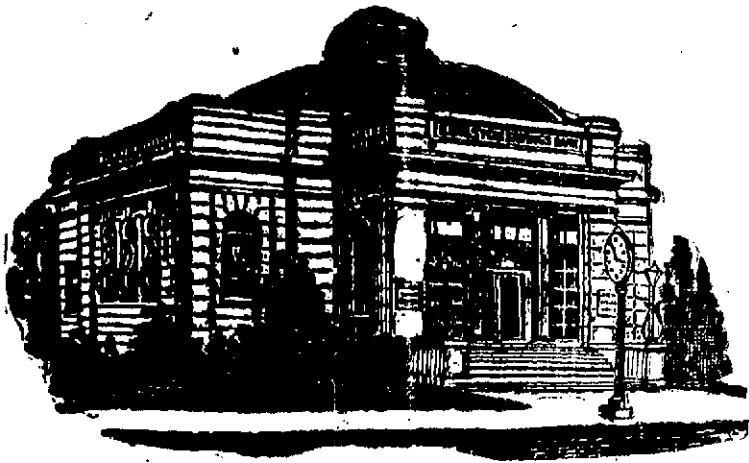

In 1941 Williams, 40, a painter, built a house in suburban North Lake village but recently he learned his deed showed him to be the owner of a vacant lot next to his home.

Casmir Wiekinski held the deed to the lot with Williams' house and refused to exchange deeds. He filed suit to evict the Williams family—and the Williams house. But Circuit Judge John Frystalski arranged an exchange of deeds and under a compromise Wiekinski was awarded $750 from the title company which had guaranteed Williams' title.

They'll Share Attention
Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—An 85 year old man and a three year old girl will share the spotlight in a youth program in suburban Maywood tomorrow.

At the "Youth Looks Up" program in cooperation with the church school of First Baptist Church Frederick Main, 85, and Janet Haines, 3, will sing a duet.

Janet is a cradle roll student and Main is a member of the Bible class of the Baptist Home and Hospital.

Redeployment

(By The Associated Press)
More than 1,400 service personnel are due to arrive today in the U. S. aboard two transports.

Vessels arriving are the General Blatchford with 1,354 troops from Yokohama, and the General Leroy Eltinge with 67 troops and 38 civilians also from Yokohama. Both are due at San Francisco.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Jan. 11—John Davis and family of Krumville have moved to their recently purchased home on the Ashokan mountain road. Mr. Davis is a former member of the Olive branch of assessors.

John Leacock is making a number of improvements to his residence on VanSteenburgh road. Town Tax Collector Earl Brundage will sit at Winchill's store on Friday, January 24.

Alva Buley, with his truck, assisted by Arthur Carter and Ray Cudney, has been kept pretty busy sanding the county and state roads in this section. A big dent was made in the sand stockpile at Hogsback last week.

The Rev. Wayne Williams, pastor of the Ashokan Methodist Church, is terminating a two weeks' vacation from Dr. W. Seminary. Mrs. Williams has resigned her position as a hospital nurse and is at the parsonage. The couple, both of whom are Californians, saw their first snow during the holidays.

Sunday, January 11, 1891, the Rev. Charles W. Kinney preached his first sermon as pastor of the Shokan Dutch Church. It was a rainy Sunday and at night there was a thunder and lightning storm.

Santo Nadal has been kept from his duties the past few days by a bad cold.

Fred and Irving Weeks are busy hauling coal from the mines. The Weeks firm now operate four trucks.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ficke and sons of New York came here Monday to get the car, which has been at Haver's Garage for the past several weeks. They took some of their household effects back to the city. Mr. Ficke is now employed as a foreman at one of the Border plants in the city.

Snapshots received from Sam Cohen, who is wintering at Tucson, Arizona, show the Ashokan grocer as a picture of good health.

Frank Avery of Route 28 is now master of the local troop of Boy Scouts.

John Jones, mountain road farmer, has butchered nine pigs thus far in the winter.

Mrs. Grant DeSilva, who lived at her home in Holcville, has many friends in the twin villages. The DeSilva family formerly conducted the Ashokan general store.

Word has reached here of the death of Charles T. Moffat, chairman of the board of the Moffat Bearings Co. in Philadelphia. Mr. Moffat resided as a boy in Stamford, where his parents kept store and also operated the Roxmere Hotel. He was a college room mate of Judge Roger H. Loughan of Hurley.

Arthur Hansen has removed all of his magnetite rebuilding equipment from one of the Winchill buildings, to Hurley, where he will continue the business on an enlarged scale.

Communion services were held in the Ashokan M. E. Church last Sunday evening.

Christmas cards received by local friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Peck, summer residents, reveal an old stone church in rural setting as etched by Mrs. Rose B. Peck.

Charles Giles, faithful sexton of the Reformed Church and custodian of the Shokan schoolhouse, in a conversation having to do with the wisdom of dog, tells of an exceptionally smart canine owned by farm neighbors of the Giles family many years ago. These neighbors had one of the old time dog-powered churns, designed to lighten the weekly butter-making chore, and the dog, not seeing any fun in that kind of footwork, invariably made himself scarce on churning day morning and kept away from the farmhouse till long after nightfall.

Law Puts Stop to Spree
Five workmen demolishing the house of Patrick Walsh, of Crossmolina, Eire, found a hoard of gold and silver coins in the foundation—and promptly went on a spree with the money. The celebration caused talk and the non found themselves before a district judge, who told them they had no legal right to the money and ordered them to make good the amount—$200. The law about finding and not keeping is strict in Crossmolina.

Wife Locked Out
When her husband went to jail, he locked the house so she could not get in, a native woman at Uuderitz, South Africa, complained to authorities. She threatened to break down the doors but was persuaded to stay with relatives until her spouse was liberated.

Pearl Lusk Goes Free
After Grand Jury Action

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Nineteen-year-old Pearl Lusk, avowed-ly duped into the New Year's Eve subway "camera" shooting of a Brooklyn housewife, was free today after having been held as a material witness in the case.

General Sessions Court Judge
James Garrett Wallace freed her yesterday after a grand jury decided no action should be taken against her.

Miss Lusk had fired the saved-off shotgun, disguised as a camera, which wounded Mrs. Olga Rocco, 28, and caused amputation of her left leg. The girl told police Alberta Rocco, the victim's former husband, fooled her into believing the weapon was an "X-ray camera" designed to take pictures of jewelry which he said was concealed under Mrs. Rocco's clothing.

Rocco was shot to death by police near Grand Gorge, N. Y., last Monday night.

Play Review

by
SYLVESTER HOWARD

When Elmer Rice wrote "Street Scene" in 1929, it ran for more than a year. Since the theatre is short in original work these days,
Mr. Rice and the Playwrights' Company thought it would be a good idea to make a musical out of the old play. For the music they got the services of Kurt Weill; for the setting, Jo Mielziner; and for the lyrics, Langston Hughes. Besides these talented people, they brought Norman Cordon from the Metropolitan Opera, and numerous other good singers from the opera and concert stage. The rest is not the usual Broadway musical, but an opera. It might be called the white man's "Porgy and Bess."

The drama takes place in one of the thousands of brownstone walk-ups on a New York street.
Family quarrels, gossiping neighbors, and children fighting and playing make up the scene.

The main action concerns a woman who is unhappy with her brutal husband. She has a grown up daughter and a young son, but she is the talk of the neighborhood because of her affair with a married man. Her husband, in a drunken fit of jealousy, discovers them together and kills them both.

The violent domestic tragedy seems to be merely a device to give the play sensational action.
What is really important are the sketches of the families who live in the building.

Mr. Rice gives us a humorous and touching picture of the various people who go in and out of the ugly brownstone house. In this, he is helped immeasurably by Mr.
Weill's music. The go-lips sitting on the steps sing a brilliant and witty account of their neighbor's secrets. The song to the ice cream cone is a masterpiece of delightful fantasy. Only when he has to compose the tragic music does Mr.
Weill seem pretentious. For once in a musical, there is no difficulty about hearing the singers. Since there is almost no talking in the play, the singing tends to become artificial, especially in such phrases as "I must go to the drugstore now." Such difficulties are minor, and all the performers sing and act competently.

Chief honors of the evening cast must go to Hope Emerson for her acid portrayal of the ma-

Comes that glorious day in the life of a dieter when husband or beau suddenly begins to notice what a glamorous you're turning into. Will he be delighted? So don't weaken even if your scale doesn't show any loss after two weeks of faithful dieting—several pounds will drop off all at once.

What happens is, your body stores enough water to keep weight from dropping for about 15 days at the most. After that, however, your body stops playing tricks on you and the scale tells you the good news you've been longing to hear.

Our Reader Service booklet gives low-calory menus, calory charts, many low-calory recipes, reducing rules and tricks. Why not start the new year off right by shedding those extra pounds?

Schoharie Picks Dewey
Schoharie, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)— Governor Dewey has been endorsed formally here for presidential nomination in 1948. The Republican Club of Schoharie selected Dewey as its candidate by resolution last night.

derous applause they got for their caricature of two jitterbugs.

Musicals like "Street Scene" do not appear very often. It is a rare combination of the best that the theatre has to offer. If the action is slow moving at times; if there is too much purple melodrama; it more than makes up for these lapses by its amazing originality.

THE SOCIAL LETTER OF INTRODUCTION

A question from young people moving into a strange community, who have received several letters of introduction sent them by their friends, asks: what they are supposed to do with these letters.

The answer is simple: They mail the letters to the persons addressed and then wait for those written to, to make the next move. If any of the letters are business ones given to the husband alone, he should present them at the offices of the men to whom they are addressed. But the social letter, as already noted, always is sent by mail.

How to Take an Usher's Arm
Dear Mrs. Post: When a lady attends a church wedding, accompanied by her husband and the usher offers her his arm, which is the proper way to go about taking it? And does her husband follow forcibly up the aisle?

Answer: She lays her hand on the inside of his preferred right arm mid-way between wrist and elbow. If the aisle is narrow, her husband follows (not necessarily forcibly). If the aisle is very wide, he walks on her right side.

A Visit to Flance's Family
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it permissible for a girl to visit for a weekend or longer the family of her fiance when he and his family live out of town? How long would it be possible for her to stay without criticism?

Answer: Certainly! She may stay as long as they urge her to. In other words, the genuineness of their invitation is the only limit to the length of her visit.

Bridge Prizes
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it so terribly wrong to give bridge prizes at one's own parties instead of letting the guests play for their own money? A friend insists it is "passe," whereas I think it is considerate.

Answer: It depends entirely upon the custom of your own group in your community. People who always play for money, probably will continue to do so. But those who never play for money and expect prizes should have at least one prize provided for the winner.

Correct forms for letter writing

Kenna Is Chairman

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Frank Kenna, state committeeman from Queens' First Assembly District, is the new chairman of the Queens County Republican Executive Committee. The 51-year-old Kenna, a member of the county committee since 1920 and presently secretary to New York Supreme Court Justice Henry G.
Wenzel, was elected chairman last night, succeeding Warren B. Ash-road, who had held the post for 18 years. Ashroad formally presented his resignation at the meeting.

State Tax Deadline

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—The final quarterly payment of state taxes on 1945 income is due Wednesday. It should yield $6, 000,000, the tax commission estimates, on the basis of returns filed last April 15. About 75,000 taxpayers choose to pay in quarterly installments.
